STATINTL

1. Headquarters Regulation [REDACTED] specifies that CIA is authorized to extend training assistance to DoD intelligence elements related to their appropriate foreign intelligence and foreign counterintelligence responsibilities, provided that this assistance has the approval of the DDA. At this point, the Office of Training provides a variety of training and training support for Defense intelligence elements and their personnel. This ranges from lectures, films and documentary support, to briefing of attaches, to attendance of DoD personnel in OTR courses, such as the JCS-DIA Orientation, information science courses and the special one-day defensive driving section of the Countering Terrorist Tactics Course at [REDACTED] (The Military Operations Training Course is not included in this category as it is covered by a separate agreement to which I am a signatory.) Please be advised that I herewith delegate to the Director of Training the authority to approve such support to DoD training courses and attendance by DoD intelligence element personnel in those courses in which enrollment is routine and repeated.

2. There are other requests which arise from time to time which are not contained within this delegation.

SUBJECT: Training Assistance to DoD Intelligence Elements

I refer specifically to the initiation of new courses in the operations training field for DoD personnel and the admission of Defense personnel to courses other than those which they attend regularly. In these instances I expect that requests will be submitted for my approval on a case-by-case basis in order to assure compliance with the above-referenced regulation.

3. As new courses are approved for DoD personnel or their admittance to a course becomes established on a routine basis, however, attendance will then be treated as within the above delegation of authority to the DTR.
